

ABSTRACT

A method of programming a memory unit in a hard copy output engine includes determining a geographical area or economic region within which the hard copy output engine is to be deployed, determining an electronic address for a consumables supplier appropriate to the geographical area and programming
5 the electronic address into the memory.

Best Available Copy

0055349 : 001800